

GREENSTAR SERVICES CORP.

Five Star Electric Corp, the City's largest electrical contractor and WDF, Inc., New York City's largest mechanical and plumbing contractor, has merged with, to form GreenStar Services Corp. according to their CEOs, Five Star's Gary Segal and WDF's Lawrence Roman.

THIS MERGER IS NOT ONLY MERGER OF COMPANIES, BUT IT IS ALSO A MERGER OF FRIENDS.

Gary Segal and Larry Roman have been friends and business associates for over 27 years. Through those years, they each have taken their family businesses to new heights, and today is no different.

“This merger will allow us to get the requisite bonding on the very large projects currently out for bid. It will also allow us to offer our clients a complete MEP package at a competitive price, with the ability to provide the massive coordination effort for the plumbing, HVAC and electrical in a manner that is in the best interest of the project” said Segal.

Larry is the past President of the Subcontractors Trade Association and Gary is currently the Vice President of the organization and is slated to assume Presidency in 2011.

Both Five Star and WDF will retain and operate under their individual names. Presently, the parent company will be called GreenStar, which also owns Nagelbush Mechanical and Electric in Florida.

“The challenge we face of continuing our success in this industry is focusing our efforts on today and into the future; that is why we strongly believe in this synergy and look forward to a seamless transition in this new endeavor” said Gary Segal, CEO of GreenStar Services Corp. ●
